BAKERY FLAVORS

Bakery flavors are specialized compounds that are used to replicate and enhance the taste and aroma of baked goods. They are carefully crafted to capture the essence of various bakery products such as bread, pastries, cakes, and cookies. Bakery flavors are essential in the food industry as they allow manufacturers to create products with consistent and enticing flavors. They add depth, richness, and complexity to recipes, enhancing the overall sensory experience for consumers and making baked goods more delicious and appealing. Bakery flavors contribute to the success and enjoyment of bakery products in the market.

Dairy flavors are specialized compounds that replicate and enhance the taste and aroma of dairy products such as milk, butter, cheese, and yogurt. These flavors add creamy, indulgent, and sometimes tangy notes to a variety of food and beverage applications. Dairy flavors elevate the taste experience, making products more delicious and satisfying for consumers.

Orange flavor is mainly a kind of flavor that imitates the fragrance characteristics of orange pulp. The key components of orange aroma are aldehydes, alcohols and esters. The trace components that produce sweet fruit aroma are ethyl butyrate, ethyl 2-methylbutyrate, sweet orange aldehyde and so on.

The smell of orange peel and pulp has a certain difference, the peel has a significant fat wax smell, and even worse ones have a stronger rosin breath and a poor fragrance. The flesh has a sweet orange aroma. This is exactly the smell that people feel when they like to eat oranges. The preparation of orange flavor is mainly to imitate the fragrance characteristics of orange pulp. The key components of orange aroma are aldehydes, alcohols and esters.
